

Maavor Yabok is the classic Jewish text on death and dying written in 1626 by Rabbi Aaron Berechiah. It has been used by many Chevrah Kadisha groups throughout the centuries. This text uses teachings from the Kabbalah to explain the various rituals and belief associated with visiting the sick, caring for the dying and the dead. Rabbi Steven Moss has been working on a translation of this book for almost 50 years and would like to start an online Zoom once a week study group. If you re interested, please contact him at ravdoc1@gmail.com.